Introduction

Hello there!

Welcome into my studio, let me share a little bit about myself. My name is Eva, and I have been reading cards for almost 30 years now. About seven years ago I discovered Lenormand cards. I struggled to find decks that I connected to, so I decided to create my own. After that was successful I was hit with a bug. The Luminous Creatures Oracle is something that I have bounced around for a number of years, but during COVID I found myself with more time to devote to it.

Since I created that first deck I have been blessed with being able to be a stay at home mom while still designing and reading. While my initial skills were in paint and canvas I was hit with some debilitating health issues that really robbed me of a lot of things, the energy to drag all my supplies out to paint being one of them. Over the last couple years I have transitioned over to using an iPad and Procreate to do my designing. There are so many brushes out there that mimic watercolors, oils, inks, etc... and it certainly is friendlier on my wallet! Today probably about 80% of my work is created digitally, and I find that I am more open to experimentation when I don't have to buy thousands in art supplies.

It was a challenge to create an animal oracle deck while remaining respectful to other cultures. I am hopeful that I have been able to do this successfully. I appreciate each and every person that supports my business, because without you I wouldn't be where I am today. So thank you - I look forward to continuing to create for you.

The Cards

Start with a question.

The only question any oracle beginner needs to ask is: “What do I need to know today?” This prompt works for everyone because at any point in time—no matter where we’re at or what we’re going through—opening ourselves up mindfully to useful information is a good thing. Asking this question indicates that we’re curious, open to receiving feedback, and eager to make the day better. When you ask this question, you’re sending a message to yourself / the Universe / God / your general environment that you want a good experience and are open to advice about how to make things happen.

You don’t need to create an elaborate ritual in order to read the cards

You can, if you want to (you do you!). But know that it is not necessary. All you need to do is earnestly and sincerely ask, in your mind (or out loud if you’re that kind of person), “What do I need to know today?” and you’re primed. You can put as much drama into how you shuffle the cards, how you pick a card, how you flip it over as you want. I am personally no nonsense when it comes to this. Some people superstitiously pick up any cards that fall or “jump” out of a deck while shuffling and believe it has special meaning—that’s something fun you might want to try. There are no rules when it comes to how many times you shuffle your cards, how many times you cut your deck, or if you even want to cut your deck at all.

You don’t need to complicate the pulling of a card.

Unless you want to. Now that we’ve gotten that out of the way, what do you do when you now have your chosen oracle card in your hands? Notice the first thing that pops in your head the minute you look at the illustration or read the words on your card.

This is your intuition / gut / higher self / instinct / conscience / subconscious talking straight to you. If you want a deeper experience with the cards, jot it down—in sentences, phrases, single words, or doodles. (I find that writing down what enters my head always helps me digest the messages better). Oracle cards will not always make sense. At least not right away. The minute you force “meaning” into a card, your rational mind / logic / ego is entering the picture and juxtaposing what it thinks you need to know vs what your gut is telling you. We already spend all day talking to our rational minds—you don’t need another avenue for it to impose its opinions on you. This is why it’s so important to notice the first thing that comes to mind—even if it’s not what you think you should know that instant. Sometimes, your card’s meaning may come to you later in the day or retrospectively, after a day, a week, or a month.

Sometimes the meaning won’t come to you at all

And that’s okay too. Learning to read oracle cards is an exercise in connecting with your intuition, and being able to let go in case that connection just doesn’t come through. It happens to all of us (myself included). The important part is to attempt to understand and to learn to let it go when nothing comes up. This doesn’t mean your cards are faulty, that you don’t have intuition (WE ALL HAVE IT), or that something’s wrong with you. When this happens, I believe what we’re meant to learn is that we can chuck the practice and throw it in the bin if it’s not working.

Oracle cards and their messages are not the be all and end all. So if they’re stressing you out, relax, and know that you have the option and right to disregard them when they’re not working for you. That said, there is a difference between ignoring an oracle card’s message because you don’t get it and disregarding it because you don’t like what it says.

Oracle cards won't always tell you what you want to hear

But most of the time, you'll find that they do tell you what you need to hear. The thing about our ego is that it wants us to follow the path of least resistance all the time. This is fine in some cases, but not all. Pulling oracle cards enables us to cut through what our rational mind wants us to do (usually, this is the easy way out) and remind us of what we owe to ourselves to investigate, confront, or embark on.

At the end of this book you will find a few more advanced spread options that you can use, as well as some note pages so that you can log what cards you draw and your first impressions of them. I hope that you enjoy this deck as much as I enjoyed creating it for you!

When the Llama spirit animal appears in your oracle reading, it is a sign that you need to tap into your inner strength and tenacity. Like the llama, you have the resilience to overcome any obstacle in your path. You may be facing a challenging situation or struggling to push through a difficult phase in your life, but the Llama spirit animal is here to remind you that you have what it takes to persevere. The Llama spirit animal is also a reminder to lean on your support system during tough times. Like llamas, you are not meant to go through life alone. Seek out the company of those who uplift and encourage you, and allow yourself to receive their support and guidance. With the help of your community and your own inner strength, you can overcome any obstacle and achieve your goals.

So, take a cue from the Llama and tap into your rugged, tenacious spirit. You are capable of achieving great things, even in the face of adversity. Trust in yourself and in the support of those around you, and you will emerge stronger and more resilient than ever before.
